Guiteau's Cross-examination. stand vesterday, after his three days' siege, a broken man. He was tired out, haggard, faded, discusted. sullen, ugly. "Do you feel any remorse?" was the last question which Judge Porter asked. After having paused earnestly upon that point some moments, ing paused earnestly upon that point some moments, the prisoner answered sullenly. "I have felt remorse, of course, so far as my personal f clings are concerned." Judge Porter, quick as lightning and dramatically said, "That will do, prisoner. Your cross-examination is closed." Gui cau, writhing under the tremendous force of Julge Porter's question, saw the terrible effect of his confession. During all these months one part of his defense has been to insist to all that he never had had a single sentiment of remorse. During this cross examination he has said a dozen times to Judge Porter's terrible questions that his mind was blank upon that subject. To all the experts who have called upon him during these weeks he has insisted, with gleeful pertinacity, that a thought of remorse never came to during these weeks he has insected, with gleeful pertinacity, that a thought of remorse never came to him; that his mind upon that subject was blank.
Yet last night, at the end of three days' cross-examination, at the crisis of as rigid a cross-examination as a prisoner in the witness box was ever subjected to, he admitted to that which seemed to bring a shudder to his relatives, and caused a sensation in the Court-room—he had killed the President, and he had suffered remore. With catlike quickness Guiteau rallied from what seemed almost

FOURTEENTH DAY OF THE SLICKENS CASE IN COURT.

Graphic Description of the Hydraulic Mines and the River from Gold Run to Sacramento.

The slickens case-The People of the State of California vs. the Gold Run Ditch and Mining Company-was resumed at 9:30 A. M. in Department Two of the Superior Court, Judge Jackson Temple presiding.

At the opening of the Court Judge Temple The bill that will be offered by Senator Miller is,

Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That all subjects or citizens of China who are students, coming to the United States for the purposes of education, merchants or traders engaged in lawful commerce, passing through the United States from curiosity or upon lawful business, or officers of the Chinese Government, with their body and household servants, may lawfully enter, remain in or pass through the United States, upon being identified as hereinafter provided; but the introduction or coming into, or the residence in the United States, of any-and all oth r Chinese or natives of China, of whatsoever class or description, whether they come directly from China or elsewhere, except such Chinese as were residing in the United States on the 19th day of July. A no Domini 1881, is her by deciared to be unlawful, and is suspended and prohibited until otherwise provided by law.

The witness never saw Guiteau doing anything at the Committee-rooms more than reading the papers. He seemed to have no special employment. In April he saw the prisoner in Washington. He (Guiteau) said he was going to have the Austrian mission. The witness told him that the place was an important one, and in Blaine's line, and that he (Blaine) was a well-known politician. The prisoner replied that he was solid with Blaine. The witness thought that the conversation was leading up to the request for him (witness) to visit Blaine in Guiteau's interest, and forestalled it by saying that his relations with Blaine were such that he could not possibly aid him (the prisoner).

THE PRISONER'S "MENTAL SIZE." The witness had formed an opinion as to Guiteau mon parlance, that he did not have good common sense. The witness was asked in relation to his po rupt it.

The reply was: "I think the Republican party a pretty difficult one to disrupt, and while there were elements of discord, my belief in the good sense of the rank and file is such that I think it would have

EXCEPTIONS NOTED. Scoville noted several exceptions to the rulings o Judge Cox in favor of the admission of these replies. This evidence created quite a stir in the Court-room, and it seemed to stagger those about the defense table. The sister of the prisoner was particularly affected, and, in tones distinctly caught by the reporter, said: "He has perjured himself; that is all those schoot it." Edward Daniels testified that he thought G

Davis—I had no personal knowledge of it, not going into caucus with the Republicans; I know there were factions in the Republican party.

Davis—That is a mere matter of opinion. I cannot understand this line of examination. The Republican party is an extraordinary organization. I do not believe it will die until the machine party is dead.

whether the success of the Democratic party at this

Davis—No, I do not. I think the Southern people are the last people in the world to desire to go into any war. If there be any war it will come somewhere else than from the South.

Scoville—That is all.

Davis—I was quite unwell when I got the summons to attend. I had never seen the prisoner, and knew nothing about the murder.

Scoville—The reason for calling you will be stated in the argument. It was finally brought out that Bailey had been given $500. The prisoner was worked up considerably, and contradicted the witness, accusing him of perpetrating a fraud upon him.

NEW YORK. CHICAGO.

"Toys!"—A little word, and yet how full of pleasant thought; how suggestive of joy, of mirth, of kindly parents and good children! But no one ever knows the broad fullness of the word till they have been to a Toy room, and made a study of the faces there—

those of the little folks, and the old

The boy on the hobby horse, or the one with soldier cap and drum, are only some of the common freaks of childish nature, which everybody sees. But have you never watched with interest the expression on the face of the timid, little girl, as she asks, "What is it!" or, observed her terror at Jack-in-the-box?" Or, have you not noticed among the older people (most likely around the doll table) the brightening of the face, which comes from the remembrance of sweet children? All these and more are but a few of the outward expressions peculiar to the Toy-room. For your inner self, there is the pleasure derived from awakened recollections of your own childhood; or the picturing of the toys—not as in a store collection—but by the chimneys of a thousand homes on Christmas Day, a source of that kind of happiness which only Santa Claus can bring.

"Toys are Children's Joys!"

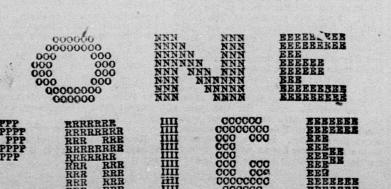

And if we look at them aright, they will not seem useless, tiresome things; but words which tell a story of affectionate parents and dutiful children, better than language itself can express, and a story of which we never tire.

For several years it has been our custom to keep a supply of Toys during the HOLIDAYS; for we have been glad to place them more within the reach of all, as our less than ordinary prices have enabled us to do. Our efforts have been appreciated, and each year it has taken a largely increased number of Toys to supply the demand. This year's collection is now ready, although there will be future additions to it of such new and novel things of the season as have yet to appear. For the present we invite you here, and if you would make purchases, do so while the assortment is fresh and unbroken.

GAS STOVE!

WICH COMFORT, WITH ECONOMY, IS gained by heating your office or bedroom—where there is no fireplace, or even if there is—with a GAS STOVE. Our climate in winter gives us generally pleasant days, but cool mornings and evenings, somewhat damp. The use of a GAS STOVE for an bour, morning and evening, is all that is required. The expense is trifling; the trouble, care or danger none. No ashes or dust covers your furniture; no wood or coal to pack upstairs. The fire is always at hand by lighting a match, and put out by turning a cock, and the combustion of the gas and air, so perfect by our improved burners, that no disagreeable odor arises, nor is the air in the apartment vitiated. Send to the office of the CAPITAL GAS CO., and order one put up. dissif

It was learned from the railroad headquarters in this city that the storm is general and heavy upon all the lines of the road, and still continued at 1 o'clock this morning. I rained hard at Summit until last evening when it turned to snow, and is falling fast, but is wet and does not drift, and no interruption of the trains is anticipated. DEATH OF MRS. T. W. SHEEHAN .- There died in this city last evening, after an illness of but one week, Mollie F., wife of T. W. Sheehan, of Sacramento. The suddenness of the death of this estimable lady added severity to the shock with which the news was Hart, leading counsel for the prosecution, says that in every reasonable probability the prosecution will close its testimony on Tuesday. The defense will therefore commence leaves to mourn her loss a husband and five children, and a large number of near rela-tives. more, Maryland. His father was an old and respected merchant of that city, and for nearly two centuries his ancestors had resided in that State. We can claim Ridgely, then, as he wished, as a pure American—as a type of that nationality which, cosmopolitan in its beginning, has become sui generis in its activity, its energy, its liberality, its success, its inventive power, its fidelity to principle, its feedom; which has harnessed the lightning to do its work, annihilated distance and weight with its iron horse, cleared a continent from wilderness, opened mines exceeding Golconda's wealth, framed, maintained and saved a Government more liberal and more powerful than any ever known, and builded a society that through its beneficent actions and loving teachings has made the name of Old Fellow the proudest boast of half a million of freemen throughout the world. Brother Ridgely received a good education, graduating from Mount St. Mary's College, at Emmittsburg, Md., at about the age of twenty. His chosen profession was the law, and after studying therefor in the office of the care and the general high tone he infused into all the divisions, degrees and ramifications of the Order. He lived as a true Old Fellow should live—co sently doing good to all; he died as a true Old Fellow should die—at peace with his soul, his fellow man and his God. Marble shafts may mark his last resting place on earth, but his manner to his own fame, secluded himself from all that he loved and held most dear, devoted his days and nights, his senses, his will, to the carving from marble of an image which should stone represent Beauty, Truth, Love, Humanity. His whele soul was concentrated in the effort; he applied to it all his genius, and it was great. Time passed; the minutes passed in eating and sleepingly; an ever enlarging number of men claiming to be his family that should be a perpetual clovy to his nation and an eternal monument to his own fame, secluded himself from all that he loved and held most dear, devoted his days and nights, his senses, his will, to the carving from marble of an image which should stone represent Beauty, Truth, Love, Humanity. His whele soul was concentrated in the effort; he applied to it all his genius, and it was great. In all of these legislative positions he was noted for his industry, for strict fidelity to his duties, for scrupulous honesty; laboring to advance the political interests of his people as their public servant with the same zeal and thoroughness that he labored to advance their moral interests through the teachings of the Order he was every pressing upon their attention. Farade manners and act parade conduct in every-day life is a more difficult matter than devery-day life. ests through the teachings of the Order he was ever pressing upon their attention. For twelve years, commencing in 1852, he was Register of Wills of Baltimore, giving univassal satisfaction to all having business relations with that office. His efforts to benefit mankind were not confined alone to adults—he included the children of the land in his far-reaching philantrophy. For a number of years he was a member of the Board of years he was a member of the Board of Education of Baltimore, serving for several years as President of that body; while thus a member he earnestly strove to elevate the character, simplify the details and raise the grade of the public schools of Baltimore. It was mainly through his exertions that the present complete school system of that city was established. He was Collector of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District by vensal satisfaction to all baving business rela-tions with that office. His efforts to benefit was mainly through his exertions that the present complete school system of that city was established. He was Collector of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District by appointment of President Lincoln, serving during that and the administration of President Johnson. Into this office he carried the appointment of President Lincoln, serving during that and the administration of President Johnson. Into this office he carried the same exact regard for the feelings and rights of others, the same care as to details, that characterized him in all other departments of the companies of the companies of the companies ages of the co rized him in all other departments of life. His accounts were always ready and of all, that it is our duty to be what we seem :

always correct. These episodes in the life of our departed brother are mentioned that we may see how the true Odd Fellow easily succeeds in other walks of life; that we may the more clearly walks of life; that we may the more clearly realize the varied services and ability of the man who for so many years we have perhaps unwittingly regarded as only the incarnation of Old Fellowship. His life in connection with the Order is a heusehold treasure in every Lodge, and will be but epitomized. May 27, 1829, he was initiated into and made a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 3, I. O. O. F., of Baltimore, Md. October 14, 1829, he was elected Vice Grand, and February 17, 1830, Noble Grand of that Lodge. White the Order is a heusehold treasure in turn of the workings of the spiritual forming duty for the Order. For over fiftytwo years—a period far exceeding the average age of man—he wore the armor of the Order and waged the good fight against evil. But one member of the Order antedates him—Brother Joshua Van Zant, the esteemed and perpetual Grand Treasurer of the Sovereign Grand Bodge, who joined in 1823. May "Honest Joshua" long be spared to us,
Brother Ridgely entered the Grand Lodge

When he entered the Grand Lodge of Maryland and became its Grand Secretary, the Order was just bringing itself prominently before the public, and was struggling for existence and permanency. A charter had but recantly, and mainly through his exertions, been procured from the Legislature of Maryland, which was the first Congultion the Order had received. nation, can scarcely realize that in 1830 the project of building the first hali for the Order was under discussion, with more doubts and fears than characterize new projects to-day. Brother Ridgely entered heart and soul into the scheme, pushed it with characteristic energy when the building was under construction and the funds gave out, advanced $2,000 out of his own pocket, and finally had the great joy of meeting with his brethren in a hall owned by the Order, dedicated by the hall owned by the Order, dedicated by the Order to the uses and purposes of the Order. At this date, 1830, he may be said to have become fully identified with the cause of Odd Fellowship, and in his own language to have
